

Investment Boost for the Local Seafood Processor

MORGAN'S Fine Fish, Omeath, is one of 21 seafood processing companies across Ireland who are to benefit from a national €15.5million investment in the seafood processing industry announced last week.

Louth T.D. Peter Fitzpatrick, has welcomed the announcement of the investment made by Louth seafood processing firms which he said will help to realise the sector's potential while creating much needed jobs.

In Louth, a total investment of €58,990.75 is being made by local firms, among which are Seafood Processors Ltd. T/A Morgan's Fine Fish, Omeath.

Morgan's Fine Fish are a major processor of seafood produce in their state of the art plant in Omeath. The company has been existence for 150 years and over the last few decades have established themselves as a premium supplier to the catering and retail trade in Ireland.

Morgan's work closely with BIM who have helped them expand over the last decade by providing funding for particular capital projects aimed at growing market share in overseas markets. Currently Morgan's are reviewing opportunities in a variety of sterling based opportunities helped by the grants made available through BIM.
